On May 23, 2011 Exelon sent the following communication to its employees regarding the merger integration process.

Managed hiring process

Message from Ron DeGregorio
Monday, May 23, 2011

Dear Colleagues,

As we embark on our integration process, it is necessary that we curtail external hiring in the areas covered by the integration process. By doing so we will have more open positions in the combined company for current employees to fill, and ensure we meet our cost and synergy targets.

For areas that are not currently going through integration such as the nuclear sites, ComEd and PECO (outside of the support functions), open roles should be posted internally first.

HR will review your current openings and known pending attrition with you and your respective leadership teams the week of May 30.

Guidelines:

- Positions approved to fill with external candidates without further review include budgeted line bargaining unit and non-represented craft positions. However, clerical roles will need to be reviewed for approval by the Integration Office.
- Roles that are critical to your business and are included in the long range plan developed prior to the transaction can be filled with external candidates during the integration process without approval, though with the awareness of the Integration Office. Examples include:
 - Experienced engineers
 - Summer interns/co-ops
 - First line supervisors
- All other external management hires (but not internal transfers) will require approval by the respective operating company president and the Integration Office including:
 - BSC positions
 - Power roles
 - Power Team positions
 - Nuclear corporate roles
 - Newly created positions
 - Key manager positions (E-05 and E-06)

- Positions resulting from a proposed change in budget
- Positions resulting from a reorganization and/or change in role/responsibility

As outlined in our initial communication materials, we are working to minimize the direct impact on our employees by focusing first on open positions, and the hiring controls outlined above are an important part of this effort. Employee movement and numbers in the pre-merger baseline will be tracked and reported to the Integration Executive Steering Committee once a month.

If you have any questions, please let me or Amy Best know and we'll get answers to you as quickly as possible.

Best regards,

Ron
